

Lewes Repair, Reuse and Recycle Network

In 2021, the EU introduced landmark Right to Repair legislation requiring manufacturers to make spare parts, tools and repair information available for the first time — a legal acknowledgement that our throwaway culture has a cost the planet can no longer bear.

The UK followed with its own regulations the same year, covering white goods, TVs and lighting. It recognised that the most sustainable product is the one already in our hands, fixed and loved rather than binned and replaced.

Every item repaired locally keeps money in the community, cuts landfill, saves the carbon embedded in manufacturing something new, and often connects you with a neighbour who knows how things work. This directory is a map of the Lewes repair, reuse and recycle network.
